ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Sch by authority, announces ED C. LUCAS as a candidate for Representative from No. 10, District, subject to action of the Republican county committee to be held in Paducah Wednesday, Sept. 27, 1899, at 8 p. m.

Writing letters has been the cause of many a great man's downfall. Mayor Lang should take warning.

Will the Brown men be forever taboed as they appear to have been in the late city primary?

There is more talk about a citizens' league since Mayor Lang gave the snub away that no Brown men need apply again before.

Take a ride over the city Mr. Mayor and you will be convinced you have other duties of more importance than letter writing.

It is a fact, as Mayor Lang states, that a man had to swear his allegiance to the United States before he would be considered as eligible to be voted for in the late Democratic primary.

The Leader is a regular wind mill. It blows hot and cold at the same time and it winds itself at the least provocation. The Browns are worrying the Leader almost into fits.

The Republicans have called a convention for the 27th inst., to take action on matters of party interest relative to county contests. The delegation will no doubt be large.

In big round numbers, the value of the cereal crops for this year will be $1,000,000,000, not including cotton, and the value of the minerals and metals taken from the earth just about the same. Together they make a stunning combination.

Mr. Goebel's campaign of vituperation has struck a snag in the shape of some fellows on the other side who can "out-put" themselves. When a political canvasser gets to such an extent it is time for the Republicans to smile at the way things come to them who wait.

Goebel and McLean would be a good team for president and vice-president on the Democratic Populist ticket in 1900. One's as good as the other and either would fit the party and suit the individual members who are anxious enough to associate under such a name and vote under such an emblem.

If Mayor Lang would devote his energies to governing Paducah and less time endeavoring to gain political notoriety Paducah would have less green scum on her gutters and the school board would not have the excuse of delaying opening the schools on account of sickness. If the Mayor wants to be governor there is room for another ticket.

Judge Tarvin will need to have himself interviewed again. The people are unable to tell from what he is credited with saying whether he is a knave or a fool. The track of the serpent he leaves behind is not clear, and it is a question whether he is a better or worse to be one. The matter makes little difference to the public, but a second interview would settle the condition of his mind, if nothing else.

The Washington Post finds what others have sought in vain—some logical reason for Mr. Bryan's espousal of the cause of Candidate Goebel, of Kentucky. It is that, with a national election law of the Goebel pattern, Mr. Bryan's chances for the presidency would be much better, the inference being that it is admiration for the Kentucky candidate's demonstrated talent for political blarney that has hypnotized the Nebraskaan.

The Goebel law, says Gov. to-be Taylor, is in conflict with every platform of the Democrats previous to the passage of the measure. In substantiation of the statement he says: "In 1896 the Democrats said: 'We believe in absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority, the vital principle of all republics.' In 1890 they said: 'The right of a free ballot is the preserve of all rights and must be maintained in every part of the United States.' Again, in 1884, they emphasized the same glorious principle: 'We believe in a free ballot and a fair count.' Making these center shots Mr. Taylor has said: 'Let me tell you what I do Democrats, when Mr. Bryan comes here, ask him: "Mr. Bryan, are you for or against the Goebel law?" Make him answer. Ask him: "Mr. Bryan, have you a law like the Goebel law in Nebraska? Would you vote for such a law in Nebraska?" Ask him: "Mr. Bryan, would you as president, favor a national law founded on the principles of the Goebel law?" If he tells you he doesn't know about the Goebel law, ask him: "Mr. Bryan, why did you come down here to tell us what to do?"

The declaration that the Goebel question got into the selection of the city ticket in Paducah sounds very questionable when it is recalled that the president of the Goebel club was among those badly defeated. But the assertion is accepted as a fact, as it comes from the "grand head," and the people will remember the glorious victory as proclaimed when they come to vote in November, if they don't cut the cloth before that time. A good citizen ticket would be very heavily rid the place of much non-sensical blarney and give the people a painstaking and not office-gratifying board of control of city affairs in the shape of a business council and not one given to much bickering, spite and rule or ruin measures. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

The cold deal that Nominee Nail and Merchant Harris got in Louisville from "their boss" was nothing to what the people will get should Goebel be elected governor. No man with that snub he wears, that pose of his head, and that snarling voice could as easily and too impotently cordially greet a friend and supporter presented by an associate on the ticket. The trouble was no doubt, as has all along been known, the fact that Nail was not a state candidate, but this in no wise pardons the offense.

Gen. Taylor is one of the best campaigners in Kentucky. He does not enter into personalities, but reviews the political records of the men and parties who are before the people asking for their votes. He will speak here on the 21st. If you desire to hear the real issues of the campaign do not fail to hear him. He has made the state the best attorney general it has had for years and will make a good governor. Remember the date and go hear him. He will not insult any one or injure the feelings of the most sensitive.

Elsewhere The Sun today announces Mr. Ed C. Lucas for representative from McCracken county subject to the Republican convention to be held in this city on the 27th inst., at 2 p. m. Mr. Lucas, as The Sun has before remarked, is one of the county's esteemed and worthy young Republicans and should be won the nomination he seeks and be chosen as representative of the county he would make the people a careful and energetic member. His candidacy is cordially recommended to the people.

The frost the outside speakers who come into Kentucky are getting and will get must not be construed for lack of Kentucky acclimatization, for that is not its true inwardness. The people of Kentucky don't wish for outside interference in their family political matters and they want to see it even if it is necessary to be so rude as to frost the outside mediocrities. If you will come, come prepared to go about the town to meet with a Goebel-like chilliness and to take hand-outs wherever they are tendered.

Gov. Stone's coming will not do Democracy any good, for he is in the state at the wrong time. Then he knows nothing of the state war, he admits, but nevertheless he is for that peace and harmony which alone will help Goebel—the last thing the true Democrats of the state will do to save any idea in an off year.

Mr. Stone will roll over the state and gather no Democratic moss on this trip.

While some sound money men are endeavoring to reuter the ranks of Democracy, they must bear in mind they can vote, but need not apply for office.

France and Spain are rivals for decadence. Just now they are coming down the track neck and neck.

DEGRADING POLITICS. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "Without regard to party spirit citizens favor honest elections. Free government is based upon faith in fairness at the ballot box. It is therefore a matter of general concern when any party seriously undertakes to tamper with the voice of the people. This form of depravity is showing a bolder front than heretofore and must be dealt with accordingly. The issue has been made in Kentucky with colored indifference to the sovereign rights of each voter. Much to the credit of a large number of the democrats of the state the Goebel program has been repudiated and a ticket named representing the better element of the party. But the Goebel election machinery is already doing its sinister work. In each county in the state an election board has been appointed by the Goebel state board at Frankfort. Ninety-five counties have two Goebel election judges to one alleged Republican. Fifteen counties have each two Goebel judges and one alleged Republican. In eleven counties the boards are solely Democratic. The Goebel party has 245 of the election judges to 108 of all other parties, and this minority also is selected by the Goebel state board.

"At the coming election, and before voters have had a chance to speak on the Goebel law, its author has full control of the election boards in every county. The Democratic party is divided, but only the Goebel faction is permitted to name election judges.

John Young Brown's supporters are under the same ban as the Republicans. This illustrates the certain tendency of a partisan election law to get into the hands of a constantly narrowing circle. It creates a powerful ruling class who manage dominations as they see fit to suit themselves. After the people are deprived the offices are parcelled out by the ruling few who are carried through the subterfuge. As soon as the Goebel law was passed Goebel forced himself upon the party as the first candidate for governor. It was the next step in his scheme. Others of the same kind will follow unless Kenaukians in November can smash the conspiracy against their fundamental rights as American citizens. How far Goebel will venture to go in falsifying returns remains to be seen. He has yet to show any scruples in tramping upon a fair ballot.

"The same form of polluted election law has appeared in Missouri. At the last session of the legislature a scheme was concocted to give the law exclusive control of the election machinery in Republican St. Louis. In the latest test the Republican plurality in this city was over 10,000. Nevertheless the Democrats are to take charge of the registration, the conduct of elections and the counting of the vote. A majority that has continuously proved itself loyal to the polls for more than ten years has been placed at the mercy of the minority as far as it can be accomplished by a legislative act. The purpose of such laws is remarkable. It is to make partisan machinery supreme over the voter. Resort to such infamies is an evidence of party decadence, but they demand vigilance. The Goebel law is the first to be subjected to a practical trial. It has split the party, which is a favorable sign. But it was not framed by a man without a conscience to be lightly abandoned. If Goebel does not intend to steal the election in Kentucky his character and purposes must have changed suddenly."

The next matter of interest to the public in this connection is the constitutional provision establishing the railroad commission.

The original resolution, with reference to this subject, was offered by Mr. Clardy, subsequently a member of congress, then a delegate to the Christian county. This resolution of Dr. Clardy's will be found on page 112 of the "Debate."

Referring to page 166 of these debates we find a resolution offered by Mr. John D. Carroll of Henry, relating to the same subject.

The report of the committee on railroads and commerce, to which these resolutions were referred, in the first section thereof contained practically the clause which was finally adopted in the constitution. The debate begins on page 491.

The only part Mr. Goebel took in the discussion and passage of this measure was to offer the following amendment, which was rejected by a vote of 60 to 9.

"When jurisdiction is conferred on the board of railroad commissioners, all the power, judicial or ministerial, necessary to carry it into effect, is also conferred; and when in the exercise of jurisdiction within the purview of the authority conferred on said board, the course of proceeding is not pointed out, any suitable process or mode of proceeding may be adopted by the board which may appear most conformable to the spirit of the constitution."

So much then for the claims put forward by Judge Goodnight in behalf of a client who has absolutely no standing in court. He comes as a claimant for the property which by an unquestioned title belongs to other men.

As a matter of fact Goebel exhibited no particular interest in any of the constitutional provisions affecting railroads, with the general public he was concerned. And as a member of the constitutional convention, he pursued the same policy which has governed his conduct in the legislature. He is the author of that provision of the present constitution by which the "representatives" other than immediate dependents of a person killed in a railroad accident are permitted to recover damages for the injury whereby the death was occasioned. He was looking after matters which affected law practices and did not trouble himself about discriminations in freight rates, or long and short haul distinctions. Nobody would criticize him for this, were it not that he and his colleagues are constantly trying to make it appear that he, and he only, has striven to protect the rights of the people endangered by corporate encroachment.

This is the second chapter on the career of William Goebel. The first dealt with his career as a lawyer, showing that he was as ready to be a corporation attorney as any one, and also showing the reason he was not more often employed was his failure was almost uninterrupted, indicating no unwillingness to serve the money power, but lacking that ability which commands success. — Evening Post, Aug. 28.

LEXINGTON HERALD Points Out Incongruities In Some Statements of Mr. Goebel. A candidate for governor delivering a carefully prepared speech has no excuse for making inaccurate statements. Since the repeatedly and practically unended statements of Captain Stone it is peculiarly incumbent upon Mr. Goebel to be strictly accurate. Yet he seems to be quite careless in his statements. We do not know how many have been deceived, how many corrected, but as mere samples to illustrate this carelessness we select these: He declared that although Governor Bradley had vetoed the election bill he had since said it was an improvement on the old law. Governor Bradley promptly denied that he had ever made any such statement. Has Mr. Goebel ever retracted that statement and given to his audiences the denial of Governor Bradley?

To justify his charge that the Lexington convention was the creature of the money power, he announced that Mr. P. W. Grinstead, who represents a publishing house, was present at the convention. Mr. Grinstead published that he was on that day in Monroe county. He made certain charges as to the politics of the officers of election in Bell county. The charges were promptly shown to be a mistake. — Lexington Herald.

Dr. Edwards, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, Paducah.

Mr. Edgington, page 1231, offered another resolution on this subject almost identical with the resolution of Mr. Tyman, hardly so full and explicit. Both of these resolutions were referred to the committee on corporations, of which Mr. Stone was chairman.

The report of that committee is found on page 363, and the committee of that report is identical with the section of the constitution except for the omission from the section as reported of the word "bridge" and the words "or structure" in two places. On this measure begins on page 311 and ends on page 313, and Mr. Goebel did not offer any amendment, nor did he make any remarks in favor of the measure. Indeed, as there was no roll-call on this measure, there is nothing to show that he was even present.

Now let us take up the "long and short haul clause" of the constitution, for which credit is claimed by Judge Goodnight for Mr. Goebel.

On page 172 of the Debates of the Constitutional Convention, it is stated that Mr. Edgington, a delegate from Ballard and Carlisle, offered the original resolution on this subject, as follows:

"It shall not be lawful in this state for any railway company to charge for freight or passengers a greater amount for the transportation of the same for a less distance than the amount charged for any greater distance, and suitable laws shall be passed by the general assembly to enforce this provision; but excursion or commutation tickets may be issued at special rates."

The resolution was referred to the committee on railroads and commerce. Mr. Whitaker, chairman, and section 15 of the report of that committee, with one or two immaterial verbal changes, is identical with the section now in the constitution. The debate on the Debates begins on page 511 of the Debates of the Convention, and ends on page 513. Several verbal amendments were offered, but Mr. Goebel neither spoke nor offered any amendments as to this matter. In fact, two roll calls show that he was absent during this discussion.

This magnificent chiffonier bed is made of solid oak throughout; strongly put together and well finished, exactly as shown in above photographic illustration. It is fitted with a strong, heavily corded, woven wire spring, having a patented adjustable tension, simple and practical in its operation. We have just received a large line of this bed, which we were fortunate enough to get at an unprecedented bargain. You can't ordinarily buy a bed like this for less than $15.00; you can get one here now for $11.00. The same bed with fine beveled plate mirror only $2.00 extra.

Observations ...at Random.

Yesterday a sanitary officer called on a South Side gentleman and ordered him to have his premises cleaned. The gentleman resides on South Second street, and replied to the officer that his premises extended an acre or so far superior to that containing the gutters, which the city is ostentatious of, he was both to deprive himself of the lesser evil by having his premises cleaned, for the contrast quite modified, if not destroyed, the latter. The officer was taken out and given a whiff of the gutter, and departed in peace, and the gentleman didn't have his premises cleaned.

One of the most remarkable chicken stories of the season is told by a huckster from the lower section of the county. A few weeks ago he began buying eggs to bring to the city to sell. He paid the market price for them, said he got them fresh, and packed them in shoe boxes. As time rolled on he failed to dispose of some of them, and they were in the meantime have become quite hot, as judging from complaints heard everywhere, everybody and everything else was hot. A few hatched before town was reached, and the remainder was taken in a wagon yard back of Mr. J. A. Wolfe's tin shop on Court street. One hot day last week they began hatching and left, and soon half of the eggs were turned to chickens. As fast as they would hatch the huckster would place them where they could get along and eat, and the remainder of the eggs he sold at reduced rates to a commission merchant who shipped them post haste to Chicago, where he hoped cold weather would stay the relentless hand of incubation, and enable the hen fruit to be palmed off on some unsuspecting person up north, before the chicken asserted itself.

The huckster, however, is laughing in his sleeve. He does not claim positively that the eggs hatched from sheer heat, and were perfectly fresh when he bought them, but says he doesn't care, as where he formerly had an egg he now has a spring chicken. Eggs are worth 10 cents a dozen and chickens 20 cents a piece. So he is really ahead of the game.

An old receipt from the late Braxton Smith to Mattie A. Effinger was found yesterday by Mr. Fred Roth while rummaging through some old papers. It is dated August 14, 1864, and is for $35. It contains the following: "For 5 cents, red, and the other a blue two-cent revenue stamp. Revenue in those days was high. Five cents revenue had to be paid on a thirty-five dollar receipt. If the changes were that exorbitant now few people would pay their debts for fear of getting a receipt."

A joke is told at the expense of Mr. Leo Robertson, of the ice company, who goes to Michigan to hunt their every year. When Mr. Robertson returned last winter he failed to see the joke, but a gentleman who recently returned from Michigan, heard it while there, the fame of the Paducah sportsman having spread all over the state.

One day Mr. Robertson went out to hunt deer, and when a big buck ran across his path raised his gun and pulled the trigger. The weapon only snapped. Mr. Robertson expressed his opinion of a gun that wouldn't go off at a time like that, in rather uncomplimentary language, and when a few minutes later another deer jumped up and he pulled the trigger a second time, the gun only snapped again. The third deer exposed himself and he pulled the trigger finally went back to camp in disgust. When he related his experience to Dr. Frank Lloyd, who was in the party, and others, they asked him to open his gun and see if it was loaded. He did so and sure enough, there was not a sign of a lead in it. He had been hunting all day with an empty gun.

Many people have remarked the close resemblance that Congressman J. M. Erell bears to General Fitzhugh Lee since he shaved off his whiskers. Congressman Erell was always distinguished looking, but to look like Fitzhugh Lee he had his whiskers removed. If he had suspected it he would have had 'em shaved long ago.

Farmers predict frost before the last of the month. "I've often heard," said one on market this morning, "that when the top cockle-burr on a bush dried up, frost was sure to follow within twenty days, and I have a bush with a dried cockle-burr on top, at my place in the country."

An absent-minded minister got a bridal party into a laughable predicament not long since. There were two couples to marry, and one was to be married at one time by one priest, and the other an hour later by another priest. The first couple was to stand up with the bride and groom. No groomer showed up, and half an hour after the appointed time he was still missing. The huckster drove to his house for him, but he was not there and no one knew where he was. Then another priest was sought, but he was in Virginia, and still another one could not be found anywhere. By this time the hour for the later couple to be married had arrived and the party was driven to another paragonage. It would have been a double wedding, but the reverend gentleman could not marry one of the couples on account of canonical restrictions. The couple was married and the party again set out for a minister of the gospel. By this time they imagined themselves extremely ridiculous, but few people un-

CASES CONTINUED.

Sunday Morning Not Decided in Police Court.

The cases against Mr. Pat Lilly and Mr. Jake Henderson, the grocer, charged with violation of the Salubrious Food Law, were called in the police court this morning and the evidence heard in the first one and the other one continued.

The only evidence before the court was that fresh meat was sold. This Judge Sanders has already decided is legal. It is probable that by agreement the cases will be taken before Judge Henderson to decide by Attorney Wheeler Campbell for prosecution, and Attorney E. W. Bragby for the defense.

FOR PETTY LARCENY.

Charles Johnson, a colored express driver, was arrested last night on this morning on a charge of petty larceny. He had in his wagon a heavy piece of iron that proved to be the property of J. L. Kilgore. Johnson claims he found the iron on the river bank, and did not know it was stolen, but he was taken to the police station and charged with the crime.

BIG TOBACCO DEAL.

The Mayfield Monitor of yesterday says: Messrs. Blacklock, Logan & Allen, proprietors of the Farmers' tobacco warehouse, last week sold through Mr. B. Nash, to the agent of the Italian government, 538 heads of tobacco, the price paid being about $60,000. This is the largest sale of tobacco ever made at this place.

As it Looked to Him.

"It was singular," said an observant boarder, "that plenty of girls but no men are getting married this year."

"What do you mean?" demanded the cross-eyed boarder. "A woman can't get married unless there is a man to marry her." "Well, I don't read all the details of the weddings in the society columns, but I know that the headline speak about June brides, while I haven't seen the first mention of a June bridegroom."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

SHE WAS VERY PLUMB.

And Didn't Intend to Make a Guy of Herself.

She was a very plump woman, observed the New York Times. There are people who say they would like to be just as plump, but the woman herself is always thinking of ways and means by which her appearance of diabolical and circumference may be reduced and anything that will apparently increase she regards with a dislike that is little short of abhorrence. But if there is one thing she dislikes more than her comfortable plumpness, it is the water. So when one day on a summer in a fog, there was a collision, she was even more unhappy than most people are under such circumstances, though it was related afterward that she behaved with great coolness. There was fortunately no more serious result from the collision than a few scratches, but no one was quite sure in that time when the next minute would bring forth. The husband of the woman with the comfortable plumpness, like the good husband who was even more unhappy than most people are under such circumstances, though it was related afterward that she behaved with great coolness. FIXING FOR FALL
Changes in the complexion of the season, bringing fresh new lots of merchandise to the front as fast as they arrive, shaping a selling policy for the new season that will make this the most satisfactory season in the store's history. Not all the new things can be shown yet at once, but enough to assure to most of us we are well awake to your autumn needs.

There is a new thing in the store and it's going to suit some very catchy price music from now on.

Nobby Dress Goods
The beginning of the dress goods season brings many of our public to investigate the new styles. There's much early buying, too; hence we always make it a point to be among the first in the field.

This week we are showing new dress suits for 1.50 to 2.00 a yard, which you will find to be under current prices.

Bright new all-wool scratch plaids for 50c and 65c a yard, that you may pay a dollar for.

New chevrons, mercerized novelties and granite cloths, Rayette and Tare curls, and the simple heart-arts and serges for all the year-around wear.

Our Black Crepons
More popular than ever, better prepared than ever to meet the demand for these rich, glossy, lustrous materials. We've had for months selecting the choice patterns from different importers' stocks, and now they are arriving. We want your patronage, provided we merit the patronage; and while we have no doubt of this, we will respect your opinion if your strong attachment for some other firm leads you to think differently. We understand these things, and do not condemn you, but would like to have you for a customer, and assure you it is our fixed policy never to charge a customer all we could get for goods, but, on the other hand, to sell them low as on everything else, and for future trade. We hardly think you will find us doing this, but we will give you a 10% discount on all goods sold at 2.00.

For School Dresses
This week we offer an excellent assortment of new plaids and new mixtures for school gowns. These are all at very modest cost, and just of Amoskeag apron gingham, worth 7c, for 5c per yard.

Remnants Canton Flannels
Two 100 lots of 10 yard lengths of Lawrence Canton flannels, the best brand on the market, big values.

ANOTHER BOOM

Grand Rivers Will Shortly Become a Thriving Town.

Capitalists From Boston are There to Inspect the Furnaces.

Is Grand Rivers to have another boom?

For several weeks past rumors have been afloat that the boom-town was going to experience another boom, and these rumors were revived and magnified a few days ago when a private car loaded with capitalists came into the sleepy town.

A special telegram to yesterday's Louisville Post says: "It is now learned from reliable authority that the large iron furnaces abandoned several years ago at Grand Rivers, on the Louisville and Paducah division of the I. C. road, are now the property of an English syndicate, which will operate the plant on a larger scale than ever before."

A party of Boston capitalists, representing the syndicate, are now at Grand Rivers inspecting the plant and the buildings, and the recent arrival of machinery confirms the report that the plant will again be in operation. The arrival of the Boston party has manifested great interest in the section, and the resumption of the plant will increase the local iron industry, besides giving employment to many working men in the town and the country.

Grand Rivers sprang up in the wake of the Cumberland river, in Livingston county, ten years ago. Ever since its birth it has been a boom town, and it has been a boom town ever since.

STORYTELLERS.

Years ago Joseph Miller, journeying on foot, was overtaken by a countryman, who took him on his wagon and gave him a long ride. Tired, at length of conversation, the poet took a nap from his pocket, and pored over it long and silently. "What are you reading?" asked the countryman. "A novel," replied Miller. "What is it?" "Well, now, I don't see how an immortal being wants to be wasting his time with such stuff." "Are you quite sure?" asked the poet. "Of course you are." "If that be the case," responded Miller, "I don't see why I should be so very economical of my time."

Lillian Russell, who is rather careless with jewelry in the theater, left very valuable diamond ornaments in her dressing room one night during the run of "Erminie" at the Casino.

She did not miss the article until the next morning, when she started out for a drive, going to the Casino first. The woman who had charge of Miss Russell's dressing room had finished her work and had gone away. Miss Russell hastened to the dressing room, looked on the table, but could not find the jewel. Then she turned to the looking glass naturally to see if her hair was on straight, when the following announcement met her eyes, written on a piece of yellow paper, and stuck in a corner of the glass: "Miss Russell: I found your diamond when I cleaned up. I hid it in the top of your wig. I hid the shoe in the bottom drawer of the bureau where you can find it."

MARY.

As several other persons had access to the dressing room, nothing but a sense of honesty prevented some one other than the owner from finding the jewel. "In the top of the wig," wrote in the bottom drawer of the bureau. But Mary's good intentions were remembered in a most liberal manner by Miss Russell.

OPEN MONDAY

The Board of Education Has a Called Meeting.

All the Schools With One Possible Exception Open Next Monday.

The board of education met this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Chairman Leake presided and the members present were: Terrell, Ashbrook, Rodick, Olcott, Rose, Bauer, Watson.

The object of the meeting was to make some action relative to opening the schools. A called meeting last week it was decided to open the schools two weeks from last Monday, Sept. 24.

A motion was made by Mr. Watson to open the schools next Monday, the 18th instead of the following Monday—all except Washington school, on West Broadway.

A discussion arose as to using any portion of the new school building before it was entirely complete. Mr. Ashbrook, Dr. Rodick, Mr. Watson, and others thought from Contractor Hynarsh's conversation that if any portion of the building were used as a school, this usage would amount to, and would be so considered by Mr. Hynarsh, as an acceptance of that portion of the building, while they were opposed to accepting or receiving any portion of it separate. They wanted it all accepted at once, when complete.

Mr. Ashbrook said he did not wish to disarrange the schools, but he was opposed to receiving any portion of the building separate. The building committee did not oppose the opening of the schools. It simply did not feel any portion of the new building used until it was all complete.

Dr. Rodick offered a substitute motion, that all the schools open next Monday and the building committee and the building committee make the best possible arrangements for all the pupils, especially those of Washington school and of the high school, for which there is scarcely room in the new building is complete.

Mr. Terrell was in favor of the board using any portion of the new building that the contractor was allowed, on condition that he not accept an acceptance of that part of a building, and have written agreement with him to that effect, if necessary, the board to be liable for any damage to the building.

Mr. Rose then offered another substitution motion, that the building committee, president and superintendent open as many of the schools next Monday as possible. This leaves all arrangements with them, and they will do all possible to open Washington school and the high school as well as the others.

This means that all the schools will open on next Monday with the possible exception of Washington school on West Broadway.

Remember the Macabees excursion to Metropolis tonight.

The subscription list of The Sun is growing right along. Another hundred names were added the past week.

Get ready for school, children. The bell will ring for books again Monday.

MILLINERY MUBINGS.

Birds of a feather flock together to keep away from the millinery hatters. Bertha (M.) Herald.

She—"Do you see anything ridiculous about that hat?" He—"No, dear; but I haven't seen the bill yet."—Yonkers Statesman.

A New York milliner says song birds are not set on spring bonnets. Married men also agree that few spring bonnets go for a song.—Louisville Post.

"Gracious—is that a milliner's window coming down the street?" "No; it's that girl next door—she always wears her hair down on her wheel."—Detroit Free Press.

"A Michigan woman, who has been arrested for stealing hats, hurried the gaudily-trimmed things in the back yard to her home. Judging from the latest styles in trimming, it is clear that she was going into the market garden and florist business.—Buffalo Express.

The summer hat fashionable for ladies here blossoms as the rose. A single hat would make a whole flower garden and a collection of them, such as may be seen in our churches, forms an aurora borealis. It has been written that the glory of woman is her hair, but the glory of the village maiden is her hat.—Pittsburgh Star.

She had invested extravagantly in hats. They were numerous and varied, and intended only for brief service. He went to her with gloomy looks and a handful of bills. "These are simply atrocious," as he shook the evidences of indebtment. "It is abominable. I never heard of such outrageous millinery bills." "That's precisely what I thought, dear. It's shameful. She must take us for millionaires. Do write her, darling, and tell her plainly that we won't stand it. He looked dazed, and departed without another word. Can't you see how the poor fellow was pestered with doubt?—Detroit Free Press.

An account from Afghanistan, from the Weekly Telegraph, says that many years ago, according to the annals of the Indian office, a queen's messenger, a woman of inferior social rank, was sent to the king of Kabul, on his road to Kabul, and the British government, of course, wrote to complain of it. No reply was received for months; but at last the king wrote: "The matter you mentioned has been thoroughly investigated, and I find only that the robbers of your messenger have taken her to death, but all their children, as well as their fathers and grandfathers. I hope this will give satisfaction to her majesty this queen."

It seems worth noting that the queen's messenger, having taken her to death, had anything to do with three days. Mrs. Hynarsh—"You're doing pretty well; but I've got to see you about a man who has been for two weeks, and worked every day at that."

The steamer Tennessee is due out of Tennessee river this evening.

The Edgar River is off the ways and will be ready to leave next Saturday for Savannah in her regular trade, releasing the Henry Harey now filling her place.

It is estimated that the output of coal shipped by river from Pittsburgh will aggregate 150,000,000 bushels this fall and winter and following spring. 85,000,000 bushels have already been mined, which has given employment to 8,000 miners and 5,000 steamboatmen, directly and indirectly. Two-thirds of this 150,000,000 bushels of coal will be shipped south.

The J. B. Richardson left for Cairo this morning with fair business.

The dam across the head of the Indiana chute on the fall at Louisville will be of great benefit. It will keep a big piece of ice in place in the making of more cool things at home, that one of the party who had sounded hardest, said: "Too bad to wake you up, Herr Schuler." "Too bad," exclaimed the innkeeper. "Ach, himmel, I was just to wake and not a trunk myself afloat."

The Mississippi river from St. Louis to Cairo is in better condition than it has been for years previous at this season of the year.

Capt. J. M. Gamble, well known in the Ohio river trade, who commanded a small steamer, J. M. Gamble, has bought the elegant steel hull steamer Cherokee from the Eagle Packet company, and upon resumption of navigation will introduce his new purchase in the Louisville and Pittsburgh trade, plying on opposite days with the City of Pittsburgh, thus forming an important line between two great commercial points. We predict for Capt. Gamble in this new venture abundant success.

The St. Louis Waterways Journal correspondent at Gallipolis, Ohio, says: "Steamboating on the upper Ohio seems to be looking a little better. It could be much better, but it is a hard task to get steamboat owners to advertise their business. They all expect the business to come to them. Advertise the steamboats, have them manned with gentlemanly and reliable crews that will take some interest in the river, and the railroads will not do the amount of business they are. Why, it's a positive fact that some boats are run with not enough work on them to keep a cat alive, and the boats on them are in such a decrepit condition that a man wouldn't want to enter them without an accident policy, and besides, the crews in cases are worked long hours with small pay. Yet the owners wonder why the river business is not what it used to be. There is another thing in connection with the river business: The wharves should have no favorites; they should be glad if there were forty boats in every trade. There is a tendency all along the river, from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, for wharves to work particularly in the interest of just one, possibly two, of the larger lines. I think it is a great mistake. The wharves should work for every boat that runs."
